THIS FAMILY CARE PLAN BELONGS TO: _____

Pregnancy and parenthood are special times when you make plans to care for yourself and your family. If you use substances like alcohol or drugs, it is especially helpful to create a Family Care Plan. The Family Care Plan is a way for you to advocate for yourself, your family, and even your unborn child. This plan is completely personalized to your journey and will help you in the following ways:

- Decide how you will take care of yourself, your baby, and your family
- Think about the people who can help.
- Identify available resources and information to help you and your family thrive
- Help you keep everything organized and stored in one place

Personal and Family Strengths: Please list all of your family's strengths.

MY GOALS:

For each of the categories below, write down things that you are doing well and where you need improvement. Take time and reflect on these, and write a goal for each category.

Notes

- I know that this plan belongs to me and that I can update it at any time. I also understand how my Family Care Plan can help me keep everything together in one place so that it is easier for me to talk to my providers - like my doctors, social workers, treatment professionals, case workers, and court staff - about everything I have been doing to safely take care of myself and my family. It can also help me advocate for myself and identify the things I still need and want to do to help me and my family along my recovery journey.
- I understand that when I bring my plan with me to my and my children's appointments I can use it as a tool to help all my providers have easy access to the important information I choose to keep in my plan. This makes it much easier for them to help me update my plan and keep everyone on the same page and working together to help and support us. My plan is kind of like my recovery resume!
- Lastly, I understand that the providers I chose to share my Family Care Plan with will treat my plan as confidential and cannot and will not release it to another person or provider without my consent and a release of information (ROI) form signed by me.

CELEBRATE YOUR BRAVERY.

It isn't easy being vulnerable and seeking support. But here you are. Putting yourself and your needs first is the most important step in not only working on your recovery, but also for strengthening your family. Remember that it is okay to struggle as you work toward making a thriving life for you and your family. Be kind to yourself, and throughout your journey do not forget that while being a parent is tough, so are you.

My Family Wellness Plan

When you choose to commit to recovery, there may be bumps in the road. It is important to think through coping strategies ahead of time so that when you may be feeling triggered they can be implemented. Additionally, identifying those who can support you and your children is essential in ensuring your overall family's wellness and safety.

You can complete this wellness plan with the support of your treatment provider or another trusted person.

My warning signs are: _____

Safe Caregivers

A safe caregiver is a person you choose to leave your baby and/or children with in case of relapse. Ensure the safe caregiver you choose has patience with your child(ren) and a safe place for them to sleep. Also, they should not have a history of violence or drug/alcohol abuse.

I have spoken to the following people and in the case I relapse, my safe caregivers will be:
